

MINISTRY RESIDENCY PROGRAM:

Global Students

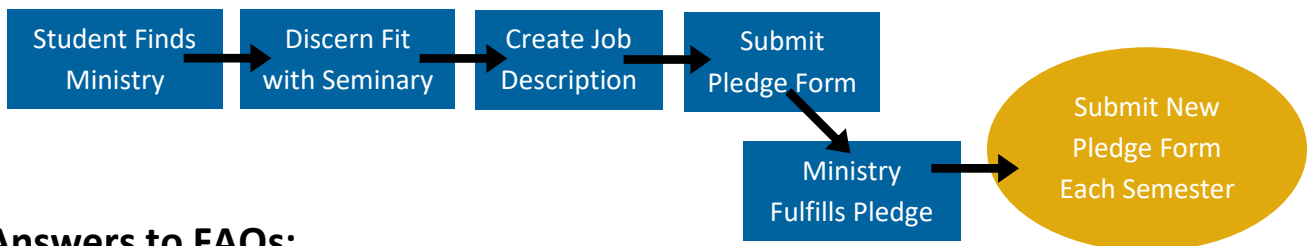

Global Students are welcome to find their own placements.

Although the Seminary only posts open positions local to the Denver metro area, this does not disqualify Global Students from participation in the Ministry Residency Program. Global Students are simply responsible for finding their own placements.

Follow the steps below to create your own Ministry Residency opportunity and take advantage of the benefits of gaining tuition assistance alongside hands-on ministry experience.

Creating a Ministry Residency position:

1. Student finds and connects with a local ministry about participation
2. Ministry contacts Advancement to discern fit for the program and consider the Residency details (Advancement@denverseminary.edu or 303.357.5891).
3. Ministry creates a Ministry Residency job description.
4. Students and ministries fill out and submit pledge forms (w/ Terms & Conditions) each semester.
5. Ministry pays the pledged amount to Denver Seminary by the payment deadline.

Answers to FAQs:

- How much should ministries pledge?
We have a set minimum pledge amount, but you are welcome to pledge more and/or include an optional, taxable living stipend. Please see the pledge form for more details.
- What paperwork is required?
In addition to crafting a Residency job description, one pledge form is required per semester of participation (spring, summer, fall) per Resident.
- What if we miss the pledge form due date for the given semester?
Positions may begin at any time during the year. However, it is preferable for new Residencies to begin before the start of a new semester so students may factor this into their tuition payment.
- How long do Residency positions last?
The pledge forms are completed on a semester-by-semester basis (fall, spring, summer), and the length may be as long as the ministry and student mutually agree upon, up to the length of the student's time of enrollment at the Seminary.
